November Newsletter – Week 1

Building Healthy Communities: November is National Roasting Month!

As you plan your upcoming holiday meals, include a roast! Roasting is a method of cooking that uses dry heat with hot air covering the food from all sides to cook evenly. This type of cooking enhances flavor and is a healthy alternative to other methods like frying. Check out BHC's parent tip sheets featuring tips on Roasting Veggies and the benefits of eating Roasted Veggies !

This November, the BHC lessons we will be teaching our students are 'Fruits and Vegetables' and 'Eating a Rainbow'. To reiterate these lessons at home, encourage your child to try a fruit or vegetable they haven't had before! Ask, 'can you name a blue, purple, or white fruit or vegetable?' A great time to talk about how to include more fruits and veggies in our day is around the dinner table! Check out BHC's parent tip sheets featuring Fruit Forward and Shop by Season! Learn more about the BHC program by visiting bhcwsu.org!

Have you heard of BHC's 'Healthy Kids Club' component? Our school is working with BHC to plan this opportunity for students to engage in additional physical activity and healthy eating opportunities in school. Ask to talk to our Healthy Kids Club Advisor if your child is interested in joining in the fun!

November Newsletter – Week 2

Building Healthy Communities: We appreciate Parents as Teachers too!

November 8th is 'Parents as Teachers Day'! This day aims to increase parent knowledge of childhood development and improve parenting practices, provide early detection of developmental health issues, prevent child abuse and neglect, and increase children's school readiness and school success. As a parent, there are many opportunities throughout any day to influence and teach your children a new lesson outside of the classroom. The organization Parents as Teachers celebrates this day by offering educational services to parents across the country to give children support and resources to learn, grow, and reach their full potential. Parental involvement and engagement is strongly linked to the development of critical skills such as reading and writing, as well as general life skills including patience, relationship building, and character development. Four ways that you can positively influence the development of students and teach them something new is to 1) Act as a role model for good behavior, 2) Explain the purpose of different tasks and skills, 3) Foster an intrinsic desire for learning through daily routines, and 4) Keep an open dialogue. Check out BHC's parent tip sheets featuring How to be an Active Role Model, Involving Kids in the Kitchen, Healthy Family Communication and Parent & Caregiver Self Care!

Building Healthy Communities: Take a Hike for Health!

November 17th is National Hiking Day! Hiking is great exercise and being outdoors allows you to get away from electronics and appreciate nature's beauty and wonder. Plus, the constant movement allows an outlet that helps our minds focus on solving the problems. Hiking also makes you happy! The hormones your body gets during physical activity help fight off anxiety, prevent loneliness and depression, and improve your mood. Hiking is for all ages making it a great opportunity to spend time with family actively! Check out BHC's parent tip sheets - Move More and Screen Time!

November Newsletter – Week 4

Building Healthy Communities: Happy Healthy Thanksgiving!

Some families celebrate Thanksgiving and if you do, it provides a great opportunity to reflect on the things for which we are thankful for. Often, this celebration takes place over a shared feast with family and friends. Thanksgiving is a great holiday to reiterate to children that a healthy meal includes all five food groups! Your meal can feature other great-tasting fall veggies like sweet potatoes and orange or yellow squashes or green beans. Turkey is a delicious lean meat (if you don't eat the skin) and whole grain rolls add to the delicious, healthy meal. If your family/guests are hungry and the meal isn't quite ready, cut up some fruits and veggies as an appetizer! Offering these foods when children are hungry is a great way to increase their acceptance of them. Have a happy and healthy holiday and don't forget to add some physical activity into your weekend! Check out BHC's parent tip sheets featuring Healthy Family Communication, Involving Kids in the Kitchen, Making the Most of Mealtime and Family Bonding Activities!

Don't forget to turn your clocks back on Saturday, November 5th!!
